II liked Eleanor. She always seemed so personable and had a great moral atmosphere. in caring for others. And that sly sense of humour, sort of talking out of the side of her mouth was always on point. My sympathies go out to David and the family. Ron Mills

Ruth and I have cherished our relationship with Eleanor and a number of her children. We share your sorrow at her passing. Eleanor was so well read and informative that every visit was an education. Her words were always framed with her wit and humour. She has been an inspiration for family, friends and neighbours.

Eleanor was a role model to all the women of St. John's. Her deep faith, her sense of humour and her wealth of knowledge meant that we all looked forward to Eleanor's programs at our U.C.W. meetings. A visit with Eleanor was the highlight of our day. My deepest sympathy to her family who she loved to share stories of with every visit.

to all of the Hancock family (but especially David and Mary). Your Mom's passing while not, perhaps, unexpected (she was in her 101st year after all) did come as a surprise to me. As recent as last year, Ross Langman related how he, John Spring and one other had gone to her house and serenaded Eleanor on her birthday. Ross said she had come to the window to accept their musical 'offering'. You will all miss her (as, I'm sure, you still miss your father) but she had a long and fruitful life and for that we can give God thanks. My deepest condolences in your loss. Blessings
