Dear Rose and Family, I only had the pleasure of knowing and working with Rob over the past couple years. I was sorry to hear the news of Rob's passing and my condolences to your family. In the short time I knew him, I knew Rob to be an incredible person, passionate about life and those he loved, a critical thinker, a patient teacher, a mentor to me personally, and fully aware of the goodness present in his life. He was particularly thoughtful about not confusing the unimportant with the important but also recognized the challenges of that in practice. I think that's why he always encouraged me to not lose myself in fruitless work or forget the value of those around me. Even though I haven't met any of you, I know Rob loved you Rose, he was proud of his daughter's accomplishments, valued his relationship with his sister and was inspired by his brother's adventurous spirit. I value the short friendship I had with him and will carry his memory with me. He will be missed. My Sincere Sympathies, Zach Sasser

I worked for Rob at Aecon and we remained friends long after we both left. We shared many great times together and I learned much from Rob that will continue to benefit me in many ways for the rest of my life. I will always remember Rob as the courageous and righteous warrior he was in all that he did, I will see his big smile and hear his booming laugh whenever I think of him. My condolences to all his family and to all those whose life he touched.

Rob was a rare soul, a truly kind and generous person. He had the wonderful gift of being able to make everyone around him feel happy and good about life. That's one of the many reasons he was such great company, and one of the many reasons he will be so badly missed. He was also smart as a whip, a great listener, and a loving and devoted father and husband. A man to look up to always, and we will.
