My Friend Ian Hi. My name is Jocelyn. I get called Joss or Joce, mostly, but Ian called me 'Jaws'. When I objected, saying it was like the movie, 'Jaws, The Great White', he pointed out that he HAD seen me in a tank top and shorts in the summer. So it was always Jaws. Ian and I shared a love for riding our motorcycles... me on my 1984 Honda Nighthawk... and Ian, in the beginning, on his Honda 250. For all intents and purposes, it 'looked' like a big bike. I would leave him in the dust on many occasions. Then he got his Harley Sportster and now I was the guy eating dust. We had a lot of fun and put a lot of clicks on every summer. Once, in Wasaga, there seemed to be a commotion and we passed some topless girls with a sign saying, 'Honk if you like tits!' Afterwards, I commented that I was surprised he didn't honk. "I thought I was, but I was pressing the starter button", he replied. Yes, Ian loved the ladies and the ladies loved him. When asked why he had a 'Jesus Fish' on the back of his van, when I knew he wasn't religious, he said, "I am opening myself up to a whole new set of women". He always had a bevy of beauties hanging around, and he always had a 'number one' in top place. I asked him what he got for Christmas from 'Number One'. "A $60 coupon for a restaurant" he said dejectedly. "$60 is pretty good!", I enthused. "Yah, but last year I got $100!" We loved to go to thrift stores, garage sales and yard sales. My husband, Garry, called him my 'girlfriend'. Ian loved getting a deal. Once he proudly showed me a tennis-racquet-looking-affair that was used to electrocute flies, mosquitoes and other insects. He became very animated with it, swishing it around in the air. "Oh, my gawd, Ian, I just brought that thing IN to the Goodwill!" Oh, well. It was still a deal. He always seemed to be in the right place at the right time for any calamity. He described an incident on French's Hill when a large boat left its trailer and headed down the highway straight for him in his lane of traffic. Only Ian could get run off the road by a boat, I figure. On another of our motorcycle trips we were both almost hit by a couple of low flying turkeys! On highway 12, just outside Midland, we watched in horror as the huge, derpy birds' legs dangled just above our helmets! Our number wasn't up that day, thank goodness. Every day in good weather, you could see Ian sitting outside his house, reading on his e-reader. He always had his eyes peeled for whatever was going on in the neighbourhood. As a matter of fact, for years you could have seen him on 'Google Maps' walking Dexter the dog down the sidewalk. It just seemed natural, somehow. He always hosted family gatherings, and was always at his kids' and grandkids' sports events. He always enjoyed his trips to Cuba and I would look after his house for him while he was away. I would drop in and put checks on the checklist he left for me. To repay me he would invite me to dinner for a favourite of both of ours... liver and onions. I would get a phone call with the announcement, "I got the liver!", and soon I would be enjoying a home cooked meal. In Cuba, Ian would take his collection of treasures he had found at the thrift stores and take them to the hotel staff and resort employees. Before he left home he would have a number of suitcases all around the house, packed with t-shirts, hats, perfume, watches, toiletries, and the ever elusive pairs of stockings to take to his friends. Ian took TONS of pictures, and made sure I got to see them. Every. Single. One. I have a file on my iPad entitled, 'Ian Photos'. From the birth of his first grandson and on...Laura even admitted I probably had more photos than her! I know Ian was a friend to many. No matter where we went, be it a store, village, town or city, as soon as we alit, Ian would say, "We'll, there's so-and-so!", and he would be gone again, catching up with an old chum. I feel that THAT is where we left off. He's off on another trip somewhere, finding his old friends. Rest In Peace, my good friend. Jaws

The Bennie's moved onto Stone Street (where I grew up) when I was 5 years old and Laura and I became the best of friends. Ian let me come along (with Jess & Laura) for many family outings, and taught me how to fish. I have many fond memories of catching 'tagged' fish for the Orillia Derby's. I spent lots of time on their trampoline and in their pool. Whenever we were passing by and saw Ian sitting on his beloved porch, we always stopped by for a chat. I send my deepest condolences to Laura, Jess and their families. He will be missed xoxo

My heartfelt condolences to Laura and Jessica and their families for the loss of their Dad and Granddad. I have known Ian my entire life. Ian, David and my brother Gordon were all best friends when they were young. We share great memories and he will be sadly missed, but in my heart he will always be. R.I.P. Ian (Our next dinner and golf date together will be in heaven) Sincerely, Margie and my brother Gordon Bennett

Jess, Laura and families, I'm so very sorry for your loss. I loved Ian. He was ALWAYS the life of the party at every family gathering! We loved going to his place for the maple syrup festival. He loved you all so very much and never tired of telling us what you were up to. I'm sure that you will all miss him terribly. Please be sure to let me know when the golf/memorial game will be. Love Cheryl

Jess, Laura and families, I'm so sorry for your loss. We saw your Dad this past August at Tim's with iPad in hand to show us all his pictures of the family and to tell us what everyone was doing. Your Dad was very proud of you both and loved being involved in the grandchildren's activities. Please let us know when the Celebration of Life is. Are thoughts are with you. Love Mary-Lou and Gary

News made its way to me today. I'm so very sorry to hear of your dad's passing..he was the dearest friend to David and I'm touched you mentioned him. I know Ian missed him greatly. Hopefully now they will have the best time on the greens. I always laughed that Ian would drag David thru all the salvage yards, garage sales and goodwill. Please reach out as I would like to find out more info. He so loved his girls and grandchildren..'
