You were the kind of man anyone would want on their side. Not just in words you always showed up for the people you loved. Whether it was lending a hand, sharing a laugh, or simply being there when someone needed you, you had a way of making people feel like family. And family is exactly what you became to us. You were my dad's best friend, but more than that, you were the son he chose and the brother we gained. You became part of our family many years ago, and our lives will never be the same without you. You were the guy who would say, "Hold my beer, watch this." The life of the party, with stories that could make anyone laugh. you lived life your own way and made sure the people around you had a good time too. After I had my girls, I'll never forget something you said to me: "If anyone deserves to be a mom, it's you, and you're doing a great job." Who knew those words would come to mean so much? You even called yourself Uncle Adam, and that's exactly who you were to them. You'd joke that you were our big brother, the one who put up with our parents for the rest of us. But there was truth in that. You were always helping my parents with projects around the house, keeping them in line, and showing up whenever they needed you. Your loyalty and love for our family never went unnoticed. Our family will not be the same without you. The memories, the laughter, the stories, and the love you gave so freely will stay with us forever. To Adam's family and his many friends, our hearts are with you during this incredibly difficult time. And to his sons he loved you guys so much and loved to share stories about what you guys were up to and how much you have grown. Thank you for sharing such an amazing man with all of us. We hope you find comfort in the countless lives he touched and in the memories that will continue to bring smiles for years to come. Thank you Adam for being such a big part of our lives. You will be deeply missed and never forgotten. Xo Rest easy, Uncle Adam.

Anne and family, so very sorry to hear of Adam's passing. Life sometimes just catches us in seconds that changes our direction. Hold close to your heart those memories that lightens the heaviness you feel today. I know Adam held a special place in his mom's life. She always spoke of how he was such a great dad. Hugs to you all.

I am blown away that Adam was taken from his family and friends far too early. I have so many memories of his crazy sense of humour and how a room lit up when he walked in. I am so proud to have met him and shared so many memories and experiences with him. RIP brother...
