

EDWARD MICHAEL FAULKNER

We are so sorry to hear about the passing of Uncle Eddie. Losing someone who held such a meaningful role in my life, as both an uncle and a godparent for my confirmation, and even though we sort of lost touch over the years. Relationships like these leave a lasting impression in our hearts, and I hope we can all find comfort in the lasting memories and the role he played in our lives.

Condolences to the Faulkner family. We had a lot of good years together as a family.

I was blessed that my kids and grandkids got to know my wonderful uncle (their great and great- great uncle) during his annual visits to Cleveland to celebrate his sister Mary's birthday with us. He always brought her roses, busied himself during the day fixing things around her house, and sat outside each evening (beer in one hand, cigar in the other), the center of four generations of family, talking, laughing, and enjoying being together. He will always be much loved and missed. We'll be forever grateful to my cousins Jim, Larry, and Jeff for the unwavering support they've provided. They come by their generous goodness honestly - the previous generation of four Faulkner brothers and their two brothers-in-law were the kindest, funniest, most incredible men ever! Heaven is an even better place now that the whole gang has reunited. The Radigan-Worsdall-Adam families are proud of being connected to all the Faulkners!
